

JK Global Opportunities Fund

May 2017

The Fund rose +2.16% in May (GBP Class, Net of Fees).

The bulk of the gains were driven by the Hong Kong, U.S., and Korean equity books. Small gains were registered in the bond book, whilst currency positioning was a small negative contributor.

Equity markets continued their strong run in May. Global technology counters continue to perform well, with Asian equities on the front foot as well. The Fund has benefitted from these trends. In Asia we have been adding to the Fund's Korean and Taiwanese exposures where we can still find good value. Both of these markets are on the cusp of major multi-year breakouts, and as such we feel they can go much higher over the medium term. We are particularly optimistic on the outlook for Korea where the earnings outlook is good, corporate governance is improving and valuations are attractive. Furthermore, the market's resilience in the face of such negatives as US trade policy, THAAD tensions with China, North Korea, and the impeachment of President Park, merely adds to our optimism. The Fund's Chinese holdings continue to make headway, and Alibaba is the latest stock to move sharply higher after projections of major sales and earnings gains over the next twelve months. CTrip and TAL Education also showed good gains during the month. We have taken a few profits in a couple of the Fund's holdings, namely Tencent and Alphabet (Google), but in general are holding our nerve and running exposures.

The U.S. economy has weakened a bit recently, but we feel this is unlikely to prevent the FED from raising rates another 25 basis points this month. The reason for this is that despite the fact that the FED has raised rates 75 basis points over the past eighteen months, financial conditions have actually eased. This leaves the FED in a bit of a quandary – seemingly the transmission mechanism between FED policy, the economy and markets, has been (temporarily) broken – but does to our mind create an opportunity to raise again, in turn leaving more firepower with which to counter the next downturn.

Whilst on the subject of the U.S., we have been somewhat surprised by the rally in U.S. yields, in the face of this easing in financial conditions and a robust labour market. The bond market is now essentially saying that the FED will abandon its tightening cycle later this year - we don't agree.

In Europe, the economic data remains fairly encouraging, although given relatively high unemployment rates in aggregate and below target inflation rates and expectations we do not see the ECB raising rates any time soon. Inflation and growth in Japan remain fairly subdued, suggesting no tightening here either. We continue to believe that investors should continue to overweight equities relative to bonds, given low tightening risks and economies that are in reasonable shape. We agree that equity valuations are high, but they are not yet at levels that we find overly concerning in the face of limited alternatives. We would also note that investor sentiment remains sceptical, and positioning neutral.

We will refrain from making any pithy comments on the U.K. election result as we have found the whole process too exasperating for words. We did, however, reverse our long Sterling position before election day, as the short term outlook seemed uncertain.

Risk Factors: Past performance may not be repeated and should not be seen as a guide to future performance. The value of investments and the income from them may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Exchange rates may cause the value of overseas investments and the income arising from them to rise or fall. The levels and bases of and reliefs from taxation may change. Investors should consult their own tax adviser in order to understand any applicable tax consequences. This list of risk factors is not complete and reference should be made to the documentation relating to the specific investment. An investment should only be made after receiving and reviewing the prospectus or offering memorandum and the risk factors contained therein.

No Warranty: The information, opinions, estimates and content in this document are provided without any representations or warranties of any kind (including, without limitation, representations or warranties as to their accuracy, reliability or completeness), whether express or implied.

Limitation of Liability: JKIM does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect, special or consequential loss or damage (in each case, including but not limited to: business interruption, loss of profits, loss of revenue, loss of anticipated savings and/or loss of good will), arising from, or in connection with the use of information contained in this document; or any decisions you make based on the information, opinions, estimates and content made available to you in this document whether or not such loss is reasonable foreseeable as at the date you read this document or JKIM has been advised of the possibility of you incurring such loss or damage, and whether occasioned by the negligence of JKIM or its employees, agent or subcontractors. This is not intended to exclude or restrict any duty or liability that JKIM has to its customers under the "regulatory system" in the United Kingdom (as defined in the FCA Handbook) or which may not be excluded or restricted as a matter of applicable law.
