

JK Global Opportunities Fund

November 2018

USD Class +0.28%, GBP Class +0.08%, YEN Class +0.07%, EUR Class +0.03% in November.

The Fund rose slightly during November, in what was another roller coaster month for financial markets. Interest rate expectations have shifted markedly over the last few weeks, as concerns build over the potential for a significant slowdown in global growth. This is illustrated by the fact that in early October bond markets had been pricing in more than two rate hikes in 2019, whilst the expectation now is for rate hikes of less than 0.25% (i.e. one rate hike). In addition, a US yield curve perilously close to inverting suggests a weakening global growth outlook if not outright recession. These rapid swings in sentiment are making a Treasury bill yield of 2.3% look attractive to investors tired of all this wrenching volatility.

On a more positive note, President Trump and President Xi agreed on a temporary truce after their G20 meeting. The US will temporarily hold off the increase of 10% tariff to 25% on $200 billion of Chinese imports as previously announced on January 1, 2019. The outcome of the Trump-Xi meeting is being viewed as positive, although our expectation is that relations between the two countries will remain strained for the foreseeable future, and it should not be forgotten that tariffs and other non-tariff actions will be back on the table if an agreement cannot be reached within 90 days.

Falling interest rates at the long end of bond markets, sharply lower oil prices, and signs of easier policy in China probably saved markets from a more serious correction last month. However, it is far from certain that we are out of the woods yet, although valuations for many equity markets are starting to look very attractive. In particular we remain optimistic on Asian and emerging market equities over the next twelve months as (a) sentiment measures are improving from depressed levels, (b) the business cycle in Asia is bottoming, (c) valuations and positioning are very supportive, (d) China's macro and market support is broadening, and (e) the pace of deterioration on US-China relations looks likely to slow.

However, the correction in equity markets, the jump in equity volatility and gold, and the outperformance of utilities, healthcare and consumer staples clearly indicate markets' worry about a recession. Whilst this is not our base case, we need to remain alert to this possibility.

The Fund raised considerable amounts of cash in September/October, and this money is being re-invested gradually as opportunities arise. Cash levels are currently around 25% and falling, as we are seeing good opportunities to invest in many equity markets at these levels. We are keeping our short position in Italian bonds, and are wondering whether to implement the same in France given recent events there. Europe looks a complete mess to us and probably the major source of risk for financial markets. The ECB is about to stop its bond purchase programme this month, declaring mission accomplished at a time when the slowdown in Europe is gaining pace and deflationary forces are re-emerging. This looks like a major policy error. Italy is facing recession, Germany contracted in the third quarter, and Eurozone money supply is slowing sharply. As the global economy slows, Europe will prove the weak(est) link. Financial markets and commentators seem to be completely ignoring this, focussing purely on the Brexit issue, which frankly in the big scheme of things is of less importance. We remain short European equity markets through the Eurostoxx 50 index future.

Things are certainly challenging at the moment and the outlook remains most unclear. However, ultimately all this uncertainty and volatility creates the opportunity for investors who are willing to take some risk and who have an investment time horizon beyond the next six months.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family Offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have UK Reporting Status.*
