

JK Global Opportunities Fund

April 2015

The Fund rose +2.11% in April (GBP Class, Net of Fees). Strength in the Japanese and Chinese equity markets were the principal drivers of the gains.

During the month we increased the Fund's Japanese equity exposure, through the purchase of Daiwa Securities, SBI Holdings, Sony Financial and Sparx Group. These stocks are all financial related businesses, which should benefit from the improved market sentiment, and which look significantly undervalued to us. The 4Q earnings season is currently underway and looks encouraging. Our forecast is for earnings to grow 15% or so over the next twelve months, leaving the market on x15 earnings. More importantly, as we have mentioned numerous times before, is the corporate governance and shareholder friendly initiatives that the Abe administration is pursuing, which in turn are stimulating the domestic investor to purchase equities. This is a trend that looks well set now, hence our medium term optimism for this market. The risk, obviously, is that Abe 'falls under a bus', and that Japan returns to type.

Given the volatility that we are witnessing in the Chinese equity market, we have been actively trading. The net result of which is that during the month exposures have been reduced, with profits taken in the Fund's exposure to the H-share future, although we have been adding to some of our favourite A-shares on weakness. Examples would include Gree Electric and Hangzhou Hikvision Digital Technology. Whilst the Chinese market is starting to look a bit frothy, particularly if one looks at metrics such as new account openings and market volumes, we remain of the view that the H-share market is undervalued, and that Government policy will remain supportive - this latter point being the critical one in our view. Historical precedent, the potential for further significant interest rate cuts, abundant liquidity and prudent macro-economic policy measures suggest further gains are merely a matter of time. The market will be volatile though.

The Fund's short positioning in global bond markets is starting to work. Yields have backed-up significantly over the last few weeks and this is something that will have to be monitored closely. We continue to feel that bonds represent an asset class that can at best be described as 'all risk and no return', and worry at investors' heavy positioning. Liquidity or lack thereof, is a concern as well. This could well be the area where the next 'financial accident' occurs. We are minded of the German economist Rudiger Dornbusch's famous comment: 'In economics things take longer to happen than you think they will, and then happen faster than you thought they could'.

During the month we have reduced much of the Fund's tactical currency exposures. Whilst we still believe the US Dollar is in a bull market, the magnitude of the move it has seen over the last four months or so has left room for a counter trend rally to develop. Given this, we will await a better entry point to initiate new US Dollar longs.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have Reporting Status.
