

JK Global Opportunities Fund

August 2019

USD Class -1.19%, GBP Class -1.37%, YEN Class -1.42%, EUR Class -1.44% in August.

The Fund fell just over 1% during August. Sentiment improved gradually during the month as there were tentative signs of a mitigation of trade war risk, combined with additional policy easing and potentially more expansionary fiscal policies (for instance, Germany is said to be considering a 'shadow budget' which would allow it to spend more on public investment projects than its constitution and debt rules would allow). The EU has made pronouncements on QE, with Draghi bowing out on a dovish note. China confirmed early September that the next round of trade negotiations will take place in Washington D.C. in early October, which has at least in the short term reduced the probability of further escalation. We continue to expect an extended period of economic and technological 'warfare' between the U.S. and China. However, with elections coming up next year, Trump might well view some sort of 'deal' that he can spin as an American/Trump 'win'. So this has to be on the agenda. However, as with all policy Trump-related, you just don't really know. He could equally well decide that remaining hawkish toward China is a bigger vote winner and act accordingly.

Meanwhile China is cutting interest rates and there are tentative signs of economic stability emerging in the economy. Hong Kong remains an issue, although tensions might be easing temporarily, given the extradition treaty has now been withdrawn. However the protestors' demands for direct elections and an independent enquiry into recent police actions will likely keep things festering for a while yet. The Hong Kong economy is clearly suffering from the unrest, with tourist arrivals falling -40% YoY in August with hotel occupancy at around 50%. A recent visit confirmed the deep-seated structural issues that are now front and centre in the minds of the locals, namely, ludicrously expensive housing (which could be eased if the 'Taipans' wanted to), an increasingly uncertain economic outlook, and a broader concern over their role and status in a country increasingly influenced by Mainland Chinese. These issues cannot and will not be resolved overnight – the genie is clearly out of the bottle.

A recent visit to Japan highlighted to us how cheap the equity market is, and how un-loved. Foreigners have been huge net sellers of equity over the last 18 months, despite the fact that most companies seem to be weathering the global economic and political uncertainty rather well. Maybe the market remains a value trap, but there is no doubt about the value on offer, particularly in the more cyclical type sectors. Expectations for these stocks are about as low as we can remember, despite balance sheets being strong, dividend yields high (and well covered), and earnings resilient. Any whiff of improving global economic sentiment would send these stocks sharply higher.

In general the investment environment remains challenging. Bonds yield little if anything at all, with the U.S. yield curve inverted suggesting an imminent recession. Equities are much better value, but would not fare well if the global economy deteriorates further. Bond market signalling is suggesting this, but we need to be aware that there are a number of technical factors such as QE distorting the picture. Our view is that whilst the global economy has clearly slowed, signs of stability are emerging. China data is stabilising, the US consumer and other advanced economies consumers are reasonably healthy, and central banks are easing policy. Global financial conditions have turned much more supportive of growth, and therefore it might be wise to start adding back a bit of risk over the next couple of months into any further weakness.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family Offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have UK Reporting Status.
