

JK Global Opportunities Fund

August 2022

USD Class -1.40%, GBP Class -1.56%, YEN Class -1.70%, EUR Class -1.73% in August.

The Fund fell -1.40% (USD Class, net of fees) in August.

August was a very tough month for assets. From stocks to bonds and commodities, every major asset class fell. Least bad were high-yield corporate bonds (-1.9% in August). Worse were a -2.2% drop in US Treasuries, a -3.9% decline in commodities and a -4.2% slide in the S&P 500. The last time the best-performing asset did worse in a month was December 1981, over 40 years ago and this has also been the worst year for US fixed income since 1928.

In terms of equity markets year to date, the S&P 500 is now down -20%, Nasdaq -27% and in Asia, the Hang Seng -21% and MSCI China -26%. Japan has performed relatively well with the TOPIX index -4% (partly due to a weakening Yen). In Europe, the main indices are down -20%, with the exception of the FTSE 100, which is down -2% (largely helped by a very weak pound, as 80% of the FTSE 100 earnings come from exports). However, the broader FTSE 250 is down -21%.

Losses in the Fund in August largely centred on remaining holdings in UK and Asia, and in particular its exposure to Sea Corp (a gaming, e-commerce, and digital finance business), which has been sold.

The only good thing, painful though it has been, is the speed at which the adjustment to rates and the corresponding corrections have taken place. US Real Interest rates have risen from the lowest they have been in 10 years at the start of the year, to the highest they have been in 10 years in the space of 9 months. At some point, there will be great opportunities to acquire assets, as many companies with strong businesses become deeply undervalued, relative to future earnings.

US Real Rates (Source: Bloomberg USGGT10Y Index)

The summer rally based around the expectation of a FED pivot driven by falling actual and forecast inflation data has been stopped in its tracks by recent data. The opposite effect, namely that inflation is likely to remain higher for longer, which is the JK base case, is now taking root once again. The rally anyway was based on short-term trading flows and short covering, in a period of low liquidity – hardly convincing.

The August CPI data put paid to the notion that the FED could somehow magically engineer the required reduction in inflation without any meaningful economic fallout. It looks like policy rates are now headed towards 5%+ as inflation broadens out to the service sector. As we have said previously, this base case view has led us to reduce risk exposures over the past few months (in particular, equities) to a bare minimum, whilst focussing more on trades in currency and bond markets.

We expect equity markets to revisit the lows made in June, and from there to fall another 10-15% as the earnings outlook darkens along with that of the global economy. When combined with rising policy rates, and a potential further sell-off in the long end of the bond markets, we are left with a toxic outlook for most financial asset classes. Cash for the time being looks like the least bad option and is the one that the Fund is adopting.

The strong US Dollar continues to drain liquidity from the global financial system at a time when central banks are tightening quantitatively (as well as raising policy rates), leaving the liquidity backdrop challenging. Whilst China is starting to loosen monetary settings, largely in response to self-inflicted challenges in the form of a collapsing property market and weak consumption (due to COVID related lockdowns), this simply is not enough to offset the liquidity challenges posed from elsewhere. Something will 'break' in time (which will reverse policy to some degree) but from market levels that we suspect will be much lower.

As stagflation takes hold in Europe, attempts to ease the pressure of rising fuel costs through large scale fiscal bailouts looks flawed to us, and will prove no 'free lunch'. A cursory glance at the recent performance of Sterling and the UK government bond market is testament to this.

Given the above the Fund is positioned very defensively. Current net exposures show 10% long equity, 8% long convertible bonds, 28% short global bonds (predominantly JGB's), and a 30% net long USD versus the HK Dollar, Chinese YUAN, and Sterling. Cash levels are around 60%.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family Offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have UK Reporting Status.

Performance Fee: Please note that all investors should read the Prospectus, Supplement and KIID for this fund before investing but this is a short summary of how the Performance Fee is calculated. The method used is a high-on-high watermark method, accrued weekly and crystallised annually on the last valuation day of the calendar year at a rate of 15% without a benchmark or hurdle and without equalisation.
