

JK Global Opportunities Fund

December 2015

The Fund fell -0.77% in December (GBP Class, Net of Fees).

The Fund fell slightly during December, leaving it with a small loss of -1.69% for the year. This should be viewed in the context of generally weak equity markets, with notably weakness from EM/Asian equities. Global equities fell -4.3% (MSCI ACWI index), with Asia Pacific ex-Japan markets down -12%. The hoped for December rally didn't materialise, and continued concerns surrounding the Chinese economy and commodity prices, in particular oil, have kept markets under pressure so far in 2016.

As we have mentioned numerous times over the last several years there is a shortage of real value opportunities across the various asset classes. Central bank liquidity injections have left most debt and equity markets overvalued and vulnerable. A lack of willingness on the part of politicians/central bankers to allow asset prices to adjust has sustained this status quo for longer than many of us thought possible, and created a very challenging investment environment. It has also resulted in a huge demand for yield and equity 'bond proxy' products such as low volatility, dividend and high quality stocks, leaving such assets at all time extremes in terms of overvaluation. This cycle has been unique with low volatility outperforming value since mid-2009 by almost 200% (source: JP Morgan).

For the contrarian investor such as ourselves this situation is creating opportunity. The crowded nature of the low volatility/yield trade has left it prone to a sharp reversal. Catalysts that could trigger such a reversal would include reduced QE, a positive inflation surprise, increased appetite for risk, and/or improving global economic sentiment. Either way, the valuation difference between low volatility and value stocks currently is extreme, which is creating a huge opportunity, particularly in the Asian markets.

Asian equities have seen meaningful underperformance in a global context over the last five years, leaving them cheap in both relative and absolute terms. Whilst it is true that there have been numerous headwinds such as slowing Chinese growth, lacklustre earnings growth, and heightened political uncertainties, we believe such negatives are now fully discounted. Many markets are at, or close to, cycle low valuations, with many stocks, particularly un-loved 'value' counters at all time low valuations.

As a result we are building positions in the likes of Jardine Matheson, POSCO, selected cyclicals, Hong Kong listed casino operators and property companies, selected luxury goods manufacturers, Gree Electric and Great Wall Motor to name a few. We have also implemented a strong 'value' tilt within the Japanese portion of the portfolio, and continue to stick with the Korean preferred trade which is doing well.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have Reporting Status.
