

JK Global Opportunities Fund

December 2020

USD Class +7.77%, GBP Class +7.67%, YEN Class +7.67%, EUR Class +7.11% in December.

The Fund rose +7.77% (USD Class, net of fees) in December, capping off a strong year which saw a total return of +30.72%. Markets witnessed a typical year-end rally last month, most notably in Asia, which benefited many of our holdings there such as Samsung, UMC (United Microelectronics Corp) (sold during month), and 'green energy' companies like Longi Green Energy and Contemporary Amperex Technology in China. The impressive rally in Bitcoin was also a significant contributor to performance. Greater visibility on vaccine rollouts and US stimulus drove this risk-on environment last month, which likely encouraged some performance-chasing going into year-end.

As a result, we are entering 2021 with elevated sentiment and valuations. Equity markets also look meaningfully overbought on many of our technical models. Therefore, we feel the risk/reward profile is less favourable now, which is at odds with the market's rosy outlook, and given this we have found ourselves taking some profits and reducing risk exposures.

After a difficult winter, the consensus expects a vaccine-induced global recovery from the second half of 2021. Bond yields will edge higher, but low inflation will keep central banks dovish. Equities will rise, the Dollar will slide – 'Goldilocks' returns. A BoAML survey shows that the majority (44%) of fund managers think the next 12 months will deliver this 'Goldilocks' environment of above-trend GDP growth and below-trend inflation, compared to just 7% who are worried about overheating. The same survey also shows growth and earnings expectations hitting 20-year highs.

It is hard to disagree that growth and earnings will recover this year, but the assumption that this necessarily equates to strong equity performance may be too presumptive in our view. Last year proved the dictum that 'the stock market is not the economy', as central bank liquidity helped inflate asset prices despite the worst economic downturn in history. In a similar vein, it seems an oversimplification to extrapolate a pick-up in economic growth with strong equity returns this year, particularly when this view relies on a benign liquidity and inflation/interest rate environment.

Whilst we expect policy to remain accommodative, we have likely seen the peak in numerous liquidity aggregates, which means the liquidity impulse will start to roll over in most markets this year. Moreover, the assumption that growth will bounce-back sharply with only modest inflation and interest rate implications, is perhaps too sanguine in our view. As we have mentioned before, the unprecedented expansion in broad money growth and private sector savings last year, makes the threat of an inflation shock very real when the economy and money velocity pick-up. The tightening in financial conditions this would cause, poses a risk to markets where valuations are stretched and have already discounted a large amount of this year's earnings growth.

In summary, dynamic, opportunistic asset allocation, combined with dynamic 'thematic' positioning and stock selection will remain the keys to navigating markets. We continue to build up our short position in global bond markets as a way to hedge out one of our biggest concerns, namely a broad-based upside inflation surprise. We have recently increased exposures to resource names, such as Antofagasta, Rio Tinto, and BHP and have reduced many of our high-flying U.S. technology names.

Chinese equities continue to 'march to their own tune' which provides an attractive way to diversify our equity exposures, combined with the fact that we find this market a potent source of alpha generation. We expect Japanese equities to perform well, and are looking to rebuild exposures to the JK Japan Fund. We have reduced our long exposure to the Renminbi (after its strong rally), and remain positive on the YEN and Sterling.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family Offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have UK Reporting Status.*
