

JK Global Opportunities Fund

February 2016

The Fund rose 0.15% in February (GBP Class, Net of Fees).

The Fund rose slightly during another volatile month for risk assets. Markets continued their sell-off during the earlier part of the month driven by the usual concerns surrounding the outlook for the Chinese economy, oil prices, and geopolitical risks. However, the second half of the month saw markets rally back from exceptionally oversold levels as oil prices stabilised, Chinese reserve data came in somewhat better than expected, and emerging market and commodity sectors started to stabilise. Gold prices remained firm and gold equities rose strongly. Further talk of policy action by the ECB and BOJ probably helped sentiment, although our reservations over the likely benefits of further QE remain.

The volatility during the month created some trading opportunities for the Fund. We closed our Nikkei futures hedges into weakness, and bought into the Japanese banks which had seen a dramatic collapse as the result of the BOJ's decision to introduce negative interest rates. We felt the reaction was overdone, and valuations had become too cheap. We were also buyers of Hong Kong property developers/landlords, again as a result of valuations becoming truly compelling. The recent moves in commodity related sectors probably reflect the fact that these stocks had become oversold, as well as being subject to high levels of short interest. Nonetheless we have been intrigued by the bottoming out in many physical commodity prices such as iron ore, copper, and oil, as well as a firming up of property prices in China. The recent performance of the Brazilian REAL, the RUBLE and South African RAND is also noteworthy.

The Fund has a strong 'value' tilt, and the recent rebound in out of favour cyclical sectors has been a benefit. Of particular note is the bottoming out in the casino stocks in Macau, Hong Kong property stocks, and cyclical names in Japan. We are also seeing tentative signs of some of our high-end fashion businesses, in particular Prada, Burberry and Ralph Lauren, stabilising. As we have noted before, selected equities are exceptionally cheap, enough so for us to buy and hold here despite the macro uncertainties.
