

JK Global Opportunities Fund

February 2019

USD Class +2.05%, GBP Class +1.93%, YEN Class +1.87%, EUR Class +1.82% in February.

The Fund rose +2.05% in February driven mainly by gains in our Chinese equity holdings. China equities have rallied 20%+ in the first two months of the year, beating most market expectations. The rally has been mainly driven by favourable policies both overseas and domestically, positive development in trade negotiations, and the resulting correction of overly-bearish sentiments. At the beginning of February the new chairman of China's securities regulator (CSRC) started reversing many of the trading curbs put in place after the 2015 bubble – making it easier for investors to access margin finance and derivatives – which in turn sparked a sentiment driven rally in Chinese equities. State media then chimed in by making a bull case for stocks in several publications, adding fuel to the fire. Safe to say the authorities are backing this rally and are prepared to stomach a bit of volatility to rekindle bull spirits amongst consumers. An announcement that Trump would delay planned tariff hikes at the beginning of March, a more dovish FED and the prospect of more easing from China (more on this below) helped support the rally in February.

We continue to be encouraged by the news flow coming out of China. This year's Government Work Report (GWR) was presented to the National People's Congress (NPC) earlier this month which put emphasis on maintaining stability, with a focus on investment and pro-growth measures. In particular, the GWR promised "a larger scale of reduction in taxes and fees" for the corporate sector of ~RMB 2trn, including the announced VAT cut of RMB 750-820bn which was somewhat more generous than expected. The government also pledged financing for enhanced infrastructure investments with an emphasis on industrial upgrade (Industrial Internet of Things (IIoT), 5G etc) and regional initiatives like the Greater Bay Area. On monetary policy the GWR said the government will step up targeted RRR reduction for medium and small banks, and all the liquidity released should be lent to SMEs and POEs. We expect another 50bp RRR cut as early as Q2, and interest rate cuts have also become more plausible, especially given the GWR's mention of "using the price instruments" to support the real economy. Overall, we sense the policy tone has turned much more market friendly after a harsh year of 'deleveraging' in 2018 which should see growth stabilising from Q2 onwards.

Those worried that this stimulus package lacks the magnitude of those seen in previous policy cycles are missing the big picture in our view. Wholesale easing like we've seen in the past is no longer achievable, nor desirable. In order for China to move up the value chain whilst fulfilling its goal of structural deleveraging requires targeted measures that bolster the private sector as opposed to inefficient SOEs. China's private sector now represents more than 60% of GDP growth, 80% of employment, 70% of technological innovation/R&D and over half of fiscal revenues. The GWR gives us comfort that Chinese authorities recognise this and are starting to allocate capital more efficiently as a result. This may not reflate the global economy as some are hoping, but it is enough to stabilise domestic growth near term and improves the longer-term outlook for China. Quality over quantity is the new mantra for Chinese policymakers.

The consensus seems to predict an imminent correction in Chinese equities after the recent rally, which suggests to us that positioning is still light. Against a backdrop of attractive valuations, bullish momentum and the aforementioned policy tailwinds, we feel this rally has legs and are tactically adding to positions on any pullback.

The fund currently has a 40% allocation to China/HK, which is made up of quality names within our favourite China themes. Namely, we have exposure to Fintech companies which are likely to benefit from financial sector reform/opening up (A-share index inclusion, Technology & Innovation board), technology companies which are spearheading China's "Industry 4.0" efforts (Artificial Intelligence (AI), 5G, IoT) and companies geared towards lifestyle consumption such as healthcare and consumer goods where the affluence of China's rising middle class provides a structural tailwind. The fund's high cash levels (40%) means we can continue to exploit opportunities in these areas as they arise.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family Offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have UK Reporting Status.*
