

JK Global Opportunities Fund

January 2015

The Fund was up +1.87% (GBP Class, Net of Fees) during January with the equity, futures, and tactical currency books all adding value. Within equities we saw a positive contribution from the Japanese book, as well as good individual moves from several of our Asian holdings, in particular My EG Services (a Malaysian internet services business), HDFC in India, Jardine Matheson and LG Household and Health Care Preferred shares in Korea. Tactical trading in the China 'A' share futures and the Nikkei added value, as did several of our tactical currency positions, in particular long USDEUR and long USDCAD.

Strategically we remain bullish on the US Dollar, although tactically we have reduced exposures significantly into recent strength. A period of consolidation seems likely to us as the trade has become crowded. We have taken profits in the long USDEUR, USDCAD, and USDGBP positions. We remain long USDCNH (Chinese offshore Renminbi), USDKRW (Korean Won), and USDIDR (Indonesian Rupiah).

Within equities, we remain optimistic on the outlook for Japan, and in particular Japanese banks which look conspicuously undervalued to us. Other areas of significant undervaluation and hence opportunity are Korean equities, and in particular Korean preferred stocks, China 'H' shares, and gold stocks.

US equities are finally starting to struggle, with earnings rather lacklustre as a strong US Dollar and weakness in the oil sector coming home to roost. Whilst we remain optimistic on the outlook for this market in the long term, a combination of a strong US Dollar and general overvaluation should see this market underperform. Likewise, emerging markets in general, where a strong US Dollar always acts as a headwind. Within EM, we would focus on India as a great macro story and beneficiary of a weak oil price.

Europe remains an area of risk and opportunity. The equity markets look reasonably cheap, but the risk of a 'Grexit' is not adequately discounted in our view, so we will look to be opportunistic. The surprise move in the Swiss Franc this month created just such an opportunity, and we bought positions in Roche and Novartis into the sell-off.

Bond yields offer very little value, and the sight of negative 5 year yields in the likes of Switzerland, the Netherlands, and Germany (as at the time of writing) suggests to us that all is not well. Global bond markets are the real 'bubble' in our opinion and our intention is to initiate selective short positions over the coming months.

One commodity that is starting to look interesting to us once again is gold. Gold tends to perform well when real interest rates decline, which is something that we expect to happen as countries with positive nominal interest rates are again starting to cut (e.g. Canada and Australia). China has also started to ease, cutting the reserve requirement ratio from 20% to 19.5% last week. Further cuts seem likely. Other central banks have now cut rates into negative territory making it less costly to hold gold.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have Reporting Status.
