

JK Global Opportunities Fund

March 2015

The Fund rose +0.24% in March (GBP Class, Net of Fees). The Fund was little changed during the month. Small gains in the Japan equity book were offset by small losses in the bond and currency books. However, as we entered April things have started to get a lot more interesting...

First up is China. The market has been on a tear over the last couple of weeks as interest in the Hong Kong 'H' share market has picked up significantly. Just before Easter the Chinese regulator announced that mainland mutual funds are to be allowed to invest in HK stocks through the Shanghai-HK stock connect (Southbound). Furthermore, the Fourth Protocol to the existing double tax avoidance treaty was signed, which means that HK tax residents will not be subject to any capital gains or dividend tax in China, only in HK. This should clear up any tax related reasons for constraining foreign funds from investing 'Northbound'. With the 'H' share market still on single digit multiples, and with liquidity conditions improving, we remain very bullish on the outlook for this market.

In Japan, news flow remains constructive, and the Nikkei 225 is closing in on the 20,000 level (last seen in 2000). The earnings outlook is very good, being one of the few equity markets globally that we expect to deliver strong earnings growth over the next twelve months. Domestic investors are buying the market, which is something we have not really seen before, and the corporate sector seems intent on improving shareholder returns through dividend increases and share buybacks, as well as value enhancing corporate activity. Return on capital is the new management mantra and we are excited. Japanese equities have always been viewed – quite rightly – as a 'value-trap' that would only perform when management attitudes meaningfully changed. Well, it looks like they have. As a result, we are upgrading our targets for this market.

The major global bond markets continue to perform well, with Switzerland becoming the first government in history to sell benchmark 10-year debt at a negative interest rate. The yield on offer was -0.055%. Needless to say, given our well documented views, we did not subscribe! However, despite ridiculous valuations, QE creates a strong tailwind for prices, and we know from Japan's experience that yields can stay very low for a very long period of time. Maybe this will be the case in Europe and elsewhere, but we doubt it. Markets certainly expect it to be. In the euro area, the interest rate and CPI swap markets suggest that real interest rates will average negative 1.1% over the next 50 years. Investors expect US real rates to average just 0.2% over the next 50 years, well below the average of 1.9%. Enough said.

In general, we remain upbeat on risk assets. With real rates negative and most developed economies growing we feel it is too early to be overly cautious. We are very bullish on the outlook for certain equity markets, in particular Japan and China, and are positioned accordingly.
