

JK Global Opportunities Fund

September 2016

The Fund rose +1.49% in September (GBP Class, Net of Fees).

The Fund rose +1.49% over the month, helped by gains in the long equity and long volatility book. In particular, there were standout performances from the Fund's Chinese education stocks, as well as the likes of Alibaba and the Macau casino stocks. Vietnamese equities also performed well, and we continue to be encouraged by the market friendly policies being pursued by the government.

We made few changes to the Fund, although we have started to increase the YEN short exposure against the Dollar as we feel that the risk/reward from current levels looks favourable. We are monitoring the performance of Sterling closely, as it is starting to look very cheap against a number of the major crosses, in particular the YEN and EURO.

Global bond markets continue to look vulnerable. We won't rehash all our arguments in favour of our large short positioning here, suffice to say that this looks to be one, if not the, best risk/reward trade for investors that we have seen in many a year.

Equities remain the asset of choice, although we are mindful that if the bond markets break, equities will likely go with them – at least initially. To hedge this, we continue to trade a long volatility position in the VIX future.

As we enter the fourth quarter we expect volatility to pick-up, as US election uncertainty, combined with a possible FED rate rise leaves many financial assets – which are priced for perfection – vulnerable. In particular, we feel the post QE trade of simply buying low volatility equities is running out of road, which will prove problematic as this has become such a consensus position.

The US Dollar's consolidation phase looks to us to be over, which will prove a challenge for emerging markets. The strong performance from this asset class this year is now vulnerable to a meaningful correction. We have been slightly perplexed by the strength of the EM rally this year as it has come against a backdrop of a contraction in US Dollar liquidity. Such an unusual divergence is probably unsustainable.

In general, we remain fairly cautious on risk assets. As well as the risks mentioned above, we could add weak earnings growth, a slowdown in buyback activity, and concerns about the European banking system. All in all, not a time to be taking too much risk.

JK Global Opportunities Fund is a weekly dealing UCITS fund. It can be held by ISA's, SIPP's, Pensions, Charities, Family offices, Endowments, as a direct holding or through a Private Wealth Manager. All classes have Reporting Status.
